

Site Review Notes

Project Title: Seattle Sounders

Creative Director: Griffin Orser
Designer: Minju Lee

Make it so that when someone is on a certain page, like the history one for example, that button on the top bar is either a different color or bolded or something just so they know which page they're on

I'd also say you could make the top bar with the crest a little smaller just so there's more room to see the content. You might not even need to put the crest on there and could just do the green bar for navigation.

For the initial landing page where it's just the crest and the background, try to make it so it doesn't scroll at all and all three of the background stripe colors are the same width.